

MAINE FAMILY PLANNING

STRONGER Together

ANNUAL IMPACT REPORT

JULY 1, 2019–JUNE 30, 2020

Like many of you, we at Maine Family Planning are grappling with a lot of unknowns.

The coronavirus pandemic presented our organization and our patients with significant uncertainties. We are wrestling as a society with racism, climate change, and rampant income inequality—all problems that intersect with our work, about which there are many more questions than answers.

However, while it's hard to predict what the future holds, we are certain of this: Our patients need us. Maine needs us. And we're dedicated to ensuring all Mainers have access to comprehensive, affordable, high-quality sexual and reproductive health services, no matter their race, zip code, income, gender identity, or insurance status.

In 2021, MFP celebrates 50 years of empowering Maine people to take control of their reproductive freedom and futures. Those who were involved in this work early on often recall how Family Planning providers used to deliver birth control supplies on snowmobiles! These days, we are no less committed to making sure those who need services get them. Only instead of blazing trails through the snow, we're breaking new ground in the field of telehealth for sexual and reproductive health care and finding other ways to reach people who need our care, during the pandemic and beyond.

This independent, innovative spirit—and your consistent support—allowed us to adapt and respond to the pandemic, even as we were still reeling from the abrupt loss of Title X federal family planning funds due to the Domestic Gag Rule. Make no mistake: We have stretched ourselves thin in order to continue providing compassionate, evidence-based care in communities across Maine.

We write this letter on the precipice of more change and upheaval. More unknowns. But what we do know is that true freedom will not come from politicians or judges, but from all of us working together to create thriving families and healthy communities. Your generous support makes it possible for us to withstand the ebb and flow of partisan leadership and to respond to unexpected events like the COVID-19 public health crisis. We really are stronger together.

Thank you,

Community Engagement and Public Affairs

MFP believes Black Lives Matter. We understand that the fight for racial justice and the struggle for reproductive freedom are inextricably linked. We condemn the systemic racism and oppression that impede the actualization of Reproductive Justice, a vision and movement founded by Black women that honors and upholds personal bodily autonomy and the ability to have children, not have children, and parent the children we have in safe and sustainable communities.

MFP's Public Affairs team employs a Reproductive Justice framework in our advocacy and organizing work. We center disenfranchised folks who often struggle to access patient-centered health care, including Black, Indigenous, and other People of Color; low-income people; and those experiencing substance-use disorder or recovery.

Over the past year, our priority has been raising awareness about and support for Maine's strong, statewide family planning network through LD 1613, a bill which would have replaced lost federal Title X funds with state funds. Due to the pandemic and resulting legislative adjournment, the future of LD 1613 is uncertain, but we will continue to advocate for public funding for family planning that doesn't undermine the trust that is foundational to the patient-provider relationship.

MFP is an active member of the Maine Coalition for Sensible Drug Policy, and we move in partnership with other service providers and social justice groups to advance policies that lift up the patients and families we serve. Evidence-based drug policy, criminal justice reform, affordable housing, and access to healthy food are all issues related to Reproductive Justice, and we will continue to advocate for policies that address these issues.

Lastly, we are always on the lookout for opportunities to shift attitudes and shatter stigma around abortion care. Our Summer Reading Club discussion (a collaboration with the Maine Humanities Council) of Choice Words, an anthology about abortion edited by feminist poet Annie Finch is just one example of this work.

Prevention

MFP's Prevention Program primarily supports Maine educators (and other adults who work with youth) to educate, support, and empower youth in and out of school settings to make informed decisions about their sexual health.

WORKED WITH ~30 SCHOOLS IN MAINE

to provide training, resources, curriculum development, and support for their health education programming, from puberty in the elementary grades through high school sex ed health classes

PROVIDED TRAINING TO 70 EDUCATORS

through formal in-person training sessions

“One of the best things about working with Maine’s foster care system is the collaborative relationships we’ve built with the DHHS Office of Child and Family Services; the Youth Leadership Advisory Team; OUT Maine and Adoptive and Foster Families of Maine.”

Lynette Johnson Director of Prevention Programs

CO-FACILITATED A DAY-LONG TRAINING FOR 24 YOUTH IN CARE AND 9 ADULTS who support them in healthy relationships and sexual health

TRAINED 22 CASEWORKERS AND OTHER ADULTS WORKING WITH YOUTH IN FOSTER CARE

“We look forward to applying some of the tools and information we’ve learned this year as we expand our offerings to support educators as well as youth around the state now and into the future.”

MEET MFP'S PREVENTION COORDINATORS

Maddy Magnuson (they/them/theirs)

"I have been at Maine Family Planning as a Prevention Coordinator for a year, and the time is flying by. I joined the team just in time for a major update of our high school sexual health curriculum, Best Practices in STI/HIV and Pregnancy Prevention. It is incredibly rewarding to create a new edition based on youth feedback and the needs of students in 2020. With a focus on consent and more LGBTQ+ inclusivity, young people are going to be receiving up-to-date and affirming lessons that prepare them with the knowledge and skills they need to be sexually healthy. It is a pleasure to be able to host workshops for educators and youth that take the stigma out of sexual health and create an environment for everyone to ask questions and get the information they need."

Vicki Preston (she/her/hers)

"I have worked for Maine Family Planning for over 20 years. Much has changed in the world of sexual health education from when I first began. We would go into schools and teach most of the sexual health classes—everything from hygiene to birth control and sexually transmitted infections to healthy relationships. I was fortunate to be part of a group that helped write the Comprehensive Sexuality Education legislation law for Maine. That piece of legislation helped mold the sexual health programs of today—supporting educators in schools and community organizations to embrace and demand comprehensive programs that are an integral part of a school's health program. I still love working with youth in the classroom when I have the opportunity. There is nothing like witnessing young people wanting the knowledge and skills to be healthy and happy sexual beings. I have been fortunate to co-author our two curricula—Puberty Happens and Best Practices. Providing these comprehensive, up-to-date, inclusive, skill-building curricula to educators is a fait accompli, but what's even better is when you see an educator have that aha moment—realizing they can do this. They can teach sexual health! That feeling is priceless!"

Maine Families in Hancock County

“The pandemic changed the way we did things starting in mid-March. All home visitors had to be trained on how to serve families virtually. The technology part of this was a new challenge for staff, but they adjusted, learned, and adapted. All staff received training on how to support families virtually through postpartum depression and other mental health concerns, intimate partner violence, substance abuse, homelessness, and getting the resources they need.”

Connie Wallace Program Director, Maine Families

WIC in Washington and Hancock Counties

Maine Family Planning manages the WIC (Women, Infants, and Children) program in Washington and Hancock Counties. WIC provides foods, nutrition education, and health care referrals for low-income pregnant, breastfeeding, and non-breastfeeding postpartum women, and to infants and children up to age five. Center for Reproductive Health

Leah Coplon, Program Director, Center for Reproductive Health

MFP's Center for Reproductive Health (CRH) was a national leader in ensuring access to abortion care in the face of the COVID-19 pandemic. Building on the years of research confirming that medication abortion is a safe option for many patients seeking to end a pregnancy, and wanting to keep patients and staff as safe as possible from COVID-19, the CRH implemented a new protocol for No-Test Medication Abortion (NTMA). Using MFP's telehealth infrastructure, providers were able to determine patients' suitability for NTMA, and provide them with a safe, at-home medication abortion. This innovative protocol was reported on in the scientific journal Contraception, and in national news media such as Time magazine.

“What feels like a new normal now could eventually just become normal. For Terri, protecting herself from the menace of the coronavirus is just one of the advantages of telemedicine abortion. She didn't face antiabortion protesters who often stand outside of clinics, and in the comfort of her own home, she could perform personal rituals as she underwent the procedure.”

Reproductive Empowerment Project (REP)

REP outreach educators partner with organizations already working with people experiencing substance-use disorder and other life situations that may make accessing contraception challenging. These organizations include domestic violence programs, harm-reduction associations, and treatment centers for substance-use disorder. REP outreach educators collaborate with the organization's staff to develop educational presentations on reproductive health, including contraceptive methods, harm-reduction strategies, and STI/HIV prevention. REP offers confidential, on-site, one-on-one consultations with clients at these organizations. Between July 1, 2019 and June 30, 2020, REP reached:
